VENDOR CATALOG

Blue Forge Press is the print division of the nonpartisan, volunteer-run, 501(c)(3) arts and education nonprofit, Blue Forge Group (Blue Legacy EIN 83-4307421).

Founded in 1989 in Seattle, Washington, we have four divisions: Blue Forge Press, Blue Forge Films (film, television and theatre), Blue Forge Gaming (tabletop and computer games), and Blue Forge Sound (music and podcasts). All divisions share the same mission: to make storytelling accessible to all people and educate and encourage artisans marginalized due to factors beyond their control.

Since 1999, Blue Forge Group has operated a one-acre campus of creative studios and community gardens on the edge of Banner Forest on Washington's Olympic Peninsula. The campus hosts youth and senior programming and provide safe spaces for artisans of all ages to explore and create.

Though the recipient of grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the ArtsFund Community Accelerator, NEXT for Autism, and the Washington Arts Commission, and a holder of the Candid GuideStar Platinum Seal of Transparency, Blue Forge Group is primarily supported by individuals who understand that art fosters hope and all stories deserve to be shared.

About Us

Founded in 1989, Blue Forge Group began with just two divisions: Blue Forge Press and Blue Forge Gaming. By 2011, Blue Forge Films and Blue Forge Sound had been launched, with all four divisions sharing the same goal: To educate and encourage storytellers from all walks of life, especially those marginalized due to race, gender, age, disability, religion, sexuality or economics.

All of our team members are volunteers; there are no paid staff or paid executives at Blue Forge. And all of us are artisans ourselves. We make our livings as authors, filmmakers, game designers, actors, musicians, podcasters, and artists. Our Board of Directors is populated by the diverse artisans we work with, allowing our creative partners to have a voice in all major company decisions.

With a focus on education and breaking stereotypes, Blue Forge Group pioneered the way publishers, record labels, and film and game studios work with their artisans, and how books, albums, films, television shows and games are made and marketed. While refusing to become a vanity company (where artisans pay for services), we maintain our integrity, quality and mission by remaining a traditional studio with a noncommercial twist: Pay the artisans more and the company less; keep work available indefinitely, and publish art that's timeless instead of timely.

Though always a Washington State registered charity and not-for-profit entity with the highest levels of transparency, in April 2019, Blue Forge Group became a 501(c)(3) federal nonprofit under the parent name Blue Legacy. We chose to include the word "legacy" to symbolize our commitment to preserving our artisans' bodies of work throughout and beyond their lifetimes.

With a one-acre campus of multiple studios for safe and supported creation; an acting club, the Blue Village Acting Troupe; BlueFlix, an independent streaming platform, and the Create4U creative club for neurodivergent young adults and their allies, Blue Forge Group regularly adds to our community programs to better serve our artisans. The Abduction at Baskerville Hall

The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes (Book 2)

Thomas Mengert

ISBN 978-1590929964 paperback

Also available in ebook.

SRP $18.99 • 432 pages • 6.0 x 9.0

Historical Fiction, Mysteries

Available to vendors through Ingram or directly from the publisher.

The Theological Odyssey of the Great Detective. The world of Holmes is a world of contradictions. Mysteries no author has solved... until now.

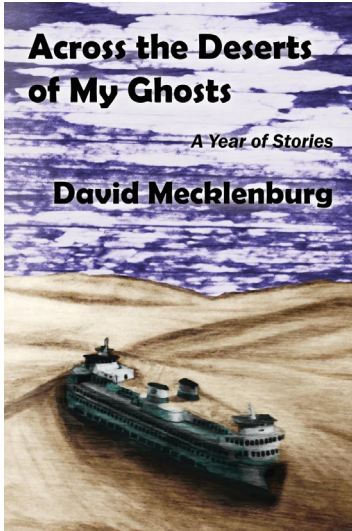

What dark truths lie within the heart of Baskerville Hall? Can Detective Sherlock Holmes and his indomitable companion, Dr. John Watson, outwit the nefarious Professor James Moriarty, whose plots threaten the very heart of the British Empire? How will they use their wits and bravery to outmaneuver a foe who is always two steps ahead? What secrets do Lady Beryl's past hold, and how are they connected to the nefarious plans of her abduction?

Lifelong Sherlockian scholar Thomas Mengert has drawn aside the curtain of history, unraveling and reweaving to reveal a deeper Sherlock Holmes than even the original works by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. A decade in the making, The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes is a multi-volume pilgrimage that frames "the problem of evil" as a philosophical investigation in search of a theological answer.

The adventure continues in "The Abduction at Baskerville Hall" as Holmes and Watson confront their most perilous case yet, facing off against the cunning Moriarty and delving into mysteries that stretch from Baskerville Hall to the fog-shrouded streets of London to the exotic dangers of Persia and beyond. The duo embarks on a quest to rescue Lady Beryl from the clutches of Rodger Baskerville, a man whose villainy knows no bounds. Their journey is a testament to courage, justice, and the enduring power of friendship, as they navigate through schemes of abduction, forgery, and the dark underbelly of society.

As the great detective has so often said, "The game is afoot!"

Across the Deserts of My Ghosts

David Mecklenburg

ISBN 978-1590929414 paperback

Also available in ebook.

SRP $16.99 • 262 pages • 6.0 x 9.0

Short Story Collections, Fiction & Literary Fiction

Available to vendors through Ingram or directly from the publisher.

Mecklenburg's best stories of the year. In 2019, Blue Forge Press selected nine authors and sent them monthly writing prompts for one year. They were radically diverse people in terms of experience, style, ideology, class, politics, race, sexuality, and religion, but they all gave a year of their creative lives to craft their best work. From Hokkaido to Seattle, with stops around this world and others, Mecklenburg explores the intricacy of desire, regret, innocence lost and experience mired beneath the weight of absurdity.

Through fictional memoir, essay, and third-person narratives, Mecklenburg's alter-ego and muse, Ada Ludenow, explores the effects of creation on all of us. Blue Forge Press used a light editorial hand to allow the writer's voice to be heard in its original state: Undiluted, unaltered, and raw. "Across the Deserts of My Ghosts" collects all twelve stories written by David Mecklenburg plus an extensive interview and a thirteenth bonus story written in 2020.

J.W. Capek

ISBN 978-1590929513 paperback

Also available in ebook.

SRP $16.99 • 266 pages • 5.5 x 8.5

Science Fiction

Available to vendors through Ingram or directly from the publisher.

Survival is beyond gender, technology, or politics. It is a beautiful spring day when the people of the Deerwhere community meet an insurmountable natural catastrophe. Survival is completely dependent on human resilience and cooperation. A dystopian city-state must transform into recovery.

Exposed to a variety of cultures, challenges of nature, and personal fears, the people of Deerwhere must save themselves and their home. “Adrion’s Passage” is set in the Deerwhere universe, a world where a New Confederation of Peace was established after centuries of wars, overpopulation, political disruption, and global pandemics.

Deerwhere was the culmination of humanity’s search for Utopia. The colony quarantine keeps the survivors safe. Three genders live in harmony in Deerwhere: male, female, and uniale. Through epigenetics, uniales embody the prime qualities of both sexes and are immune to pandemics.

Available to vendors through Ingram or directly from the publisher.

Set against the picturesque backdrop of the lush forests in a rural community north of Seattle, Washington, “The Adventures of Fayrene” is a collection of ten stories that transports readers to a time when the world was simpler and adventures were boundless.

BOOK 1 OF THE CHRONICLES OF REZTAP

ARTEMUS WITHERS

Science Fiction

Even simple plans never quite work out for intergalactic trader Tar Reztap, and yet he and his loyal friend Gorth keep finding their way into crazy missions that border the impossible. Chased throughout known space aboard the Bloated Namreg (quite possibly the ugliest ship to ever dock in a space port), it's not long before Reztap's nemesis catches up. And it's not the captain of the Progorian warship (really, it was an honest mix-up that started the war); nor the Madame of the Courtesan Academy, who happens to be a half-sister to the head of the assassin's guild. No, real trouble requires blood ties. Reztap's brother sends the traders spinning back into space on a mission to rescue a princess from a fortress on Alaga One's moon.

Desperate times call for desperate measures, and Reztap and Gorth are forced to pull out their back-up navigator—an eccentric android named Chuck, who has a thing for decorating (and “Rezzy”). Aboard the Namreg, a door that couldn’t be opened for thirteen years mysteriously grants entrance to a hidden chamber. Inside is a treasure, a long-lost family member, and a mission no one has to force Reztap to do. But this time, he can't fail. Regretfully, the “rescued” Princess Slurk is still on board, with plans of her own.

Ghost Sniffers, Inc. is a paranormal investigation firm run by nine-year-old Faith Forge, a little girl whose Type 1 Diabetes gave her the ability to sniff out ghosts. But she's not the only one with a "trade-off power." In the fictional world of Ghost Sniffers, Inc, all young people with life-altering medical conditions or disabilities have super powers. United with Forge, these brave investigators solve mysteries that are serious and silly, wacky and witty.

While rehearsing with her theatre club, Forge tells the story of her past investigation into an enchanted apple that may have affected a multi-student winning streak. Maxo meets Harley, Reeve, Cosmo and Eve... who is a little more than she seems.

Based on Season 1, Episode 7 of Ghost Sniffers, Inc, the television and web series where the actors' real-life disabilities become super abilities, "Apple & Eve" is a novelization with a twist written by Colette Smartt-Hawkins and Maxwell DiMarco and approved by the show's creator, Jennifer DiMarco. You'll find every scene from the original episode and many, many more! Discover the origin stories, epic details and side quests that weren't included in the show in this enhanced adventure.

Major Montclair “Ike” Curtis knows the cost of war, but nothing could prepare him for the challenges waiting behind enemy lines. Tasked with coordinating covert missions in Nazi-occupied Europe, Ike works alongside a fearless Czech fighter pilot, a dedicated British sergeant, and the heroic resistance fighters risking everything to help stranded Allied airmen escape.

As the missions grow more dangerous, Ike wrestles with the burden of command, the weight of his own past, and the sacrifices demanded of those he sends into harm’s way. Amid the chaos of war, the sound of church bells and the quiet strength of faith begin to call him back to a hope he thought he’d lost.

From clandestine airbases to the heart of the French resistance, Bells of Redemption takes readers on a journey of sacrifice, resilience, and the enduring power of faith.

That epic story began in three novels ("The Gathering Storm," "The Tsunami," and "Typhoon of Steel") and now, Marshall Miller continues to fill in the details in short stories that are as raw and real as the novels before them.

"Beyond the Great Compromise" is a collection of nineteen short stories in the Tschaaa Infestation series, featuring four never-before-seen tales of the Avenging Angel, Abigail Yamamoto, following her journey from Angel to Banshee.

What is a shadow?

In the 21st Century our scientific minds may dismiss them as simply the absence of light, but a deeper part of our brain still knows them as tangible things full of meaning. Without them, the world would be a bleak, blinding continuum.

Just as shadows make a painting or a film come alive, they define us and our families, our hopes, our mistakes and our dark triumphs. "Collecting Shadows" represents the seven short stories and a novella from the plural reality of the Hagengard, a particularly baroque and fabulist continent in Ada's World.

Whether you are dragging your hooks through the darkness of your past, yearning to fly away like a raven, or find yourself uncomfortably close to a tank of eels, these stories explore the chiaroscuro of being human in a shadowy universe.

What truths linger when the world begins to forget, and what legacies remain when the curtain falls? Can Holmes and Watson confront betrayal in the heart of Washington, D.C., while shadowing powerful forces across the Americas? Will they find resolution at last in the long shadow of the Baskerville name? Must the great detective reconcile not only public and political deception, but also the failures of progress itself? And when Holmes returns to the site of his supposed death, what will be revealed through a voice long thought silenced—a voice that asks, what is the cost of truth, and can redemption still be found?

Lifelong Sherlockian scholar Thomas Mengert has drawn aside the curtain of history, unraveling and reweaving to reveal a deeper Sherlock Holmes than even the original works by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. A decade in the making, The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes is a multi-volume pilgrimage that frames “the problem of evil” as a philosophical investigation in search of a theological answer.

The journey continues in The Curtain Falls as Holmes faces the long-delayed consequences of his choices and uncovers the human cost of political ambition, ancestral guilt, and personal exile. With Watson at his side, he revisits both familiar landscapes and unspoken memories, navigating reunions, confessions, and the philosophical burden of history. As empires falter and ideals collide, Holmes’s pilgrimage reaches its final crucible—where justice is no longer deduction alone, but the grace of a man learning, at last, how to say goodbye.

As the great detective has so often said, “The game is afoot!”

DESOLATION MOOR

Preteen & Early Teen, Fantasy & Urban Fantasy

The world has been a suspiciously quiet and peaceful place in the three years since the calamity in “Shadow Canyon.” There have been no more Stone Rot events. A new generation of international men and women are rising to prominence in the fields of business, industry, and politics. Finnley McDougall and Hadley Kobayashi are enjoying a normal senior year in high school. The future looks bright.

But when a young man from New Delhi attends an enigmatic and prestigious summer adventure camp in the Outer Hebrides of Scotland, he discovers a terrible secret. The future of humanity is in mortal danger and time is running out.

The only hope for the world is to drag one scruffy, rude, bad-tempered little gome away from his solitary retreat to get his advice. Wullie believes that the only way to avert catastrophe will require a journey to a most dangerous period in history to bring something back. The Bog Witch of Calanais has other plans. The fate of the world for both humans and gomes depends on the outcome of that clash of ideas out on a desolate Scottish moor.

Patzer's best stories of the year. In 2019, Blue Forge Press selected nine authors and sent them monthly writing prompts for one year. They were radically diverse people in terms of experience, style, ideology, class, politics, race, sexuality, and religion, but they all gave a year of their creative lives to craft their best work.

Take a journey to experience the breadth of humanity from terror and despair to hope and justice. Lauren Patzer crafted thirteen stories in everyday settings as well as fantasy and dystopian fiction sure to make you think about the human condition. Take the plunge into ice cold realities written to entertain, tantalize, and maybe even horrify.

Blue Forge Press used a light editorial hand to allow the writer's voice to be heard in its original state: Undiluted, unaltered, and raw. "Dissonance Junction" collects all twelve stories written by Lauren Patzer plus an extensive interview and a thirteenth bonus story written in 2020. Published by Blue Forge Press.

With nearly limitless variations and nuance, it asks nothing of us... or demands everything. We will sacrifice our dreams, our time, and sometimes even our lives to feel loved, to protect our loved ones, and to prove the depth of our feelings. And more often than not, we do so willingly.

Does it have something to do with the three men crucified on Roman crosses?

Fifty days later, the Holy Spirit descends on a novice priest named Ezra and a young woman, Mariam, who has taken the Navarite oath. Ezra and Mariam are baptized into a new faith but what does it mean? Has Jesus established new rules for faithful living? How can the laws of the Temple be reconciled with these fresh teachings?

How does the return of a man once thought lost challenge the very fabric of intellect, faith, and redemption? As Sherlock Holmes reemerges from the shadows of Europe to confront both old foes and inner demons, what truths will he and Dr. John Watson uncover that could forever change their understanding of justice and morality? And in a world where genius is often a double-edged sword, what lengths will Holmes go to, not only to outwit his greatest adversary, Professor Moriarty, but also to reclaim the soul of a man who has wandered too close to the abyss?

Lifelong Sherlockian scholar Thomas Mengert has drawn aside the curtain of history, unraveling and reweaving to reveal a deeper Sherlock Holmes than even the original works by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. A decade in the making, The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes is a multi-volume pilgrimage that frames “the problem of evil” as a philosophical investigation in search of a theological answer.

The journey continues in The Estates of Sherlock Holmes as Holmes reunites with his eldest brother at the family estate in Yorkshire and embarks on a parallel journey to America, where the opulence of Newport's Gilded Age contrasts with his own inner exile. A tense encounter with Moriarty at Exeter marks the first clash in a new battle of wits, while Holmes builds a personal retreat that reflects his quest for belonging. Along the way, conversations with Dr. Mortimer on ancient religions add a mystical layer to their unfolding journey.

The Deerwhere Codex defines humanity beyond the genders of Female, Male, and Uniale. Humanness can be explored through sentient Quantum Computers or corporeal beings on a water world in the Multiverse.

In “The Deerwhere Awakening,” humanity’s quest for utopia had come to fruition. The Founders imagined a place where humans, all three genders—uniales, females and males, would contentedly dwell behind walls and live happily ever after in comfort and safety. Humans have never dwelt anywhere happily ever after. It is not in their nature. Inquisitiveness and rebellion are basic thought processes. The humans revolted against their Keeper, the benign artificial intelligence the Founders had created to guide them. They thought they knew better. So they set out on their own to make the world perfect. It worked—for a while.

In “Adrion’s Passage” an earthquake, The Big One, shattered their world and a new challenge arose: survival. They discovered a wild world outside the protection of Deerwhere, an unimagined world full of hazard and discovery. There are always challenges to face in life, but people discovered those challenges always have solutions. Often those solutions are quite dangerous and difficult.

“Ever Aequum” is a collection of tales about the characters from the first two books, along with an assortment of new folk. The stories tell of their journeys, loves and tribulations as they wend their way through this dangerous, exciting new world in quest of that happily ever after for which humans all yearn.

The world of Ghost Noir is dark, gritty and dangerous. Though it bears some similarities to our own world in the 1940s, it is an alternate reality with noted differences.

Seven variants of demons (wrath, vanity, envy, hunger, fervor, greed, sloth) are commonplace. There is no alcohol. No cigarettes. No drugs and no disease. No parents, no school, no infants. There's also no sex and no procreation. No one in Ghost Noir ages and no one appears older than sixteen.

Though this world is rife with danger, demise plays by different rules. Death from old age is nonexistent and death by accident or foul play will only result in regeneration within a few hours. Memories remain intact and life continues. Only if an individual lives a truly heinous life will their regeneration be altered, allowing them to return only as a demon, unseen by most and unable to fully affect the physical world.

Why is this world like this? Where are the adults? What secrets shape the Ghost Noir universe? Detective Camille Delatore wants answers... but she has secrets of her own.

Mysteries

On this overcast but not too cool Saturday in November, a woman made an appearance on Haven Port Island, but it wasn't by the usual means.

The eleven o'clock ferry had just pulled away from the shore. Twelve year old Gary was standing on the old wharf next to the ferry dock, holding his fishing rod. He was watching the ferry when he saw something different. "Hey, look at that. There's a coat floating in the water."

"Should we go get it? Does it look good?" asked his twin brother Jerry.

Almost in unison, they dropped their fishing poles and ran off the old ferry dock to check this out. And, when they got down to the water's edge they could see more clearly it certainly was a coat, but someone was still in it.

A woman.

"Call Mom," Gary said. And Jerry did, on their emergency-only cell phone.

Their mom told them to stay put and as she drove to the waterfront, she called the sheriff's office. It flashed through her mind that talking on a phone while driving was illegal... but this was an emergency.

Darkness is a universal metaphor for fear and it waits for every one of us. “As a parent and grandparent, I have checked under beds and peered into closets at the request of my children and grandchildren. I’ve sat on their beds, prayed with them, sung to them, and read them stories until they could fall asleep. Having experienced my own fear of darkness, I deeply understand the vulnerability that comes with what is unknown and unseen.”

Collected here are sixteen stories to remind us there is a Father of Light. Based on real people and real events, on Bible stories, on everyday experiences, these are tales to guide us, comfort us... and save us. Not all light is visible to the naked eye, but it’s there and it makes itself known in our hearts, minds, and souls. And once this spiritual light manifests, the courage, strength and rebirth we find in our Creator, can light our path evermore.

Never let them see you weak. Never let the tears fall.

The phone rang on the day after Christmas and Laura Jacob learned that her father was being placed on life support after being found on his bathroom floor seizing due to his alcohol addiction. How could a sober, safe man still be that monster she feared growing up? She had allowed him back into her life after hiding for over a decade and now she regretted it.

At age 38, she suddenly felt the terror and devastation as if she was a child again. Her fight, drive, and resilience disappeared. As she learns the truth about her father's suicide attempts, abuse of his family, and continued addictions, she reflects back on all of those times when an adult—a parent, had let her down or did everything possible to destroy her spirit.

“Light Sleeper” chronicles Laura’s ongoing struggle to sleep as a response to her trauma. Meanwhile, she excels instead of fails, strengthens rather than falls apart, jumps out of airplanes and climbs mountains.

I kept trying to run away from me... but there was nowhere to go that I wouldn't be there. The more I ran, the more I needed to run. It was hard for me to see where I was headed because I was blinded by fear. The nightmares, the daydreams, and the panicking was going to be my demise. I knew the direction that I wanted to go, and it was just a matter of time before the pieces of me fell into place like a puzzle.

Dakota Foxx's debut memoir recounts her life from becoming a child bride at age thirteen, through seemingly endless cycles of abuse and assault, until the moment she decided to be her own savior and take back her life. Incredibly raw and always vulnerable, "The Magic in the Nightmare That Was Me" is a story of survival, perseverance, and a spirit that refused to be broken.

What are the tools of a storyteller? Our minds and voices, certainly, sometimes even our bodies. But human beings are innovative and adaptable at their cores and very early in our history we discovered other ways to share our stories: horse-hair brushes, quills, typewriters, pens, and even computers.

“The Mighty Pen” collects stories from fourteen unique and diverse writers that explore the idea of storytelling and the tools we use. But these are not dry tales of musty writers scribbling down worn out prose. “The Mighty Pen” features romance, surrealism, horror, fantasy, science fiction, and mystery. After all, storytellers (and their tools) come in limitless variety.

Presenting all-new, original works from Donna Lee Anderson, Norm Bowler, J. W. Capek, Chris Davis, Maxwell Kier DiMarco, David Mecklenburg, Noel Meredith, Marshall Miller, Carrie Avery Moriarty, Lauren Patzer, Amber Rainey, and Mark Robyn.

Loeb's best stories of the year. In 2019, Blue Forge Press selected nine authors and sent them monthly writing prompts for one year. They were radically diverse people in terms of experience, style, ideology, class, politics, race, sexuality, and religion, but they all gave a year of their creative lives to craft their best work.

We face ourselves more than anything else when we step into the realms of fantasy, noir, and horror. Eliza Loeb does just that with a little muse, a forsaken queen, two lovers who met in the most unlikely of circumstances and more. Loeb reaches out to the readers and asks: what is it you're looking for and what will you give in return?

Blue Forge Press used a light editorial hand to allow the writer's voice to be heard in its original state: undiluted, unaltered, and raw. "Minding the Storm" collects all twelve stories written by Eliza Loeb plus an extensive interview and a thirteenth bonus story written in 2020.

Somewhere between the waking world and a half-remembered dream, there are places we visit without meaning to. A bookshop with a shadow that watches. A forest that remembers your name. A road that winds somewhere it shouldn't.

In “A Myriad of Worlds of the Silver-tongued,” thirteen stories drift like leaves on a tide between the seen and the unseen, the sacred and the strange. Each tale is a doorway—sometimes whispered open by intuition, sometimes flung wide by grief, longing, or wonder. Bound not by genre, but by a deep attentiveness to the mysteries that hum beneath our days, these stories speak to the quiet moments when something shifts—when you feel watched, or guided, or changed.

A showcase of Alina Anthony’s best work, A Myriad of Worlds of the Silver-tongued is a collection for anyone who’s ever stood still in the dark and known they were not alone. For those who feel the pull of unseen paths. For those who remember what the world forgets.

Between two hills was a decrepit hall. Of what manner of architecture had gone into its spirit and flesh, I could not tell. The profuse and overgrown garden around it, the wild apple trees that climbed and fought with one another, obscured its age and look. It was as if each step changed the hall, and the lengthening shadows hinted at its great age, a history spoken in a forgotten language.

Ada Ludenow returns to the Harz Mountains of Germany where thirteen years earlier she experienced a love affair that threw her into the uncertainty of life. Hoping to find her lover from that time, she instead finds a hungry but inquisitive supernatural being who may or may not eat her. To forestall becoming his dinner, she tells him of the summer of her twenty-seventh birthday and how it opened the road to Elsewhere.

With twenty-one illustrations by the author, "The Nightingale's Stone" is the first novel set in the world of Hagengard, a place where reality is a plural endeavor by its inhabitants.

Deborah, the lifelong friend and nurse to Rebekah, is the witness to the singular marriage of the beautiful and adventurous young Rebekah as she leaves her home only one day after learning that the Most High God, the God of Abraham her uncle, has chosen her to be the bride of her forty-year-old cousin Isaac. Isaac, a son of God's promise to be a father of nations by whom all men will be blessed, struggles to understand the faith of his father in a God who tested Abraham and Isaac to the point of offering the boy Isaac as a sacrifice to God.

The Bible assures us that Isaac loved Rebekah and he is unique among the patriarchs, his eyes never wandered, he never took another wife or concubine. Their marriage faced many trials. Rebekah remained barren for twenty years before God fulfilled his promise to her of twin sons. It was a promise with a prophecy which she never forgot and one which put her at odds with Isaac in the ugly competition between Jacob and Esau. More than a helpmate, Rebekah completed Isaac, the two being one husband and wife as God intended in the Garden of Eden.

Deborah was the lifelong servant, beloved friend and a constant reminder of God's love for Rebekah and Isaac as they lived lives that God called them to. The Bible tells little of the life of Deborah but how she was mourned tells us of the powerful impact that her remarkable love made upon the patriarchs. Her story is a lesson in our calling by God to first love God and then love our neighbor.

Risa Sanders, owner and operator of I S.P.I., a supernatural and paranormal investigation firm, keeps taking cases that defy reality. A single mother of three adult sons, Risa is trying to keep her business afloat and satisfy her carnal desires without attachment—all with a sense of humor. Born of the magical world, her muddled background is hard to trace and she can't rely on magic like most folks so it's time to get creative.

Sometimes things are NSFW: Not Safe For Work. None of Risa's cases are usually safe for work—despite them being her work—and her latest case isn't any different. Risa finds herself deep in the woods when she stumbles (literally?) on her newest clients with their... unusual... appearance. Has Risa discovered a rare type of hard wood?!

Prophetess Leah M. Kelley should not have survived. Conceived in trauma and raised in a home shadowed by secrets, she grew up navigating abuse, abandonment, betrayal, and heartbreak. Yet every wound became a testament, every trial a lesson, and every scar a sign that God was not finished with her story.

“A Pretty Wreck: From Trauma to Triumph” is a raw and unflinching memoir of survival, faith, and resilience. From the projects of Stamford to the storms of generational pain, Leah invites readers into the broken places of her past—not to dwell in pity, but to reveal the power of deliverance and the beauty of becoming whole.

With honesty and unshakable hope, she declares what it means to be a pretty wreck: broken but beautiful, damaged but delivered, wounded but walking in victory. For anyone who has ever felt crushed beneath life's weight, this story is proof that you are not alone—and that your ending can be one of triumph.

A year of short stories from nine radically diverse authors. Blue Forge Press selected nine authors and sent them writing prompts every month for a year. Despite their vast and varied differences in experience, style, ideology, class, politics, race, gender, sexuality, and religion, the authors all gave a year of their creative lives to craft their best work over the course of 2019. The resulting hundred and eight stories were compiled into four volumes: Prompt Winter, Prompt Spring, Prompt Summer and Prompt Autumn. This fifth volume, the Prompt Generation 1 Guidebook, provides in-depth interviews with each author plus nine bonus stories written in 2020.

Whether brand new and just beginning their writing careers or established veterans in the industry, rarely have more diverse authors come together to create a body of work so inclusive and enlightening. Blue Forge Press used a light editorial hand to allow the writers' voices to be heard in their original state: undiluted, unaltered, and raw.

Featuring stories from Jennifer DiMarco, Lauren Patzer, Hiromi Cota, Amber Rainey, Eliza Loeb, Marshall Miller, Carrie Avery Moriarty, Sheila Mengert, and David Mecklenburg.

River of Dementia

Pauli Pedersen

ISBN 978-1590929766 paperback

Memoir & Biography, Nonfiction

As the butcher knife flew from Dad's hand through the air, I visualized it slicing into the back of the retreating social worker. Like a Banty rooster, my dad stood on the back stoop, preening with power.

What happened to the kind, lighthearted gentleman whose strong faith had grounded him for eighty years? When I was growing up, Dad was a playful, happy man who enjoyed bringing pleasure to his loved ones. Constructing a skating rink in the barnyard, planning trailer trips to Disneyland or Montana, and building a wakeboard to tow us behind his boat were gifts. Hard-working and ingenious, his whimsy disguised the changes taking place. Dad's mission to protect and care for others, while seeking his childhood dream of owning a farm, triggered a slow slide into the current of dementia.

Our family survived an experience so outlandish that I hope sharing it will comfort those who have rafted the same tempestuous river or are now undergoing a similar voyage. A tapestry spun from a treasure trove of family stories, this memoir lovingly accompanies his last journey.

The lesson of our odyssey? Mental illness affects billions of us and needs to be released from the darkness of disgrace into the light of love, care, and research.

Historical Fiction, Mysteries

The world of Holmes is a world of contradictions. Mysteries no author has solved... until now.

How will Sherlock Holmes reconcile the profound mysteries of his family's legacy with the escalating intellectual duel against Professor Moriarty? As Holmes ventures into the heart of Ireland, what ancient secrets and local conflicts will challenge his methods and beliefs? In a landscape steeped in history and conflict, can Holmes's keen intellect pierce the veil of Ireland's most enduring mysteries and navigate the turbulent waters of nationalistic strife?

Lifelong Sherlockian scholar Thomas Mengert has drawn aside the curtain of history, unraveling and reweaving to reveal a deeper Sherlock Holmes than even the original works by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. A decade in the making, The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes is a multi-volume pilgrimage that frames “the problem of evil” as a philosophical investigation in search of a theological answer.

The journey continues in “The Secrets of Sherlock Holmes” as Holmes confronts his most formidable intellectual adversary, explores the deep-seated conflicts of Ireland, and seeks closure to the intricate webs of intrigue. Holmes’s journey not only challenges his intellect and resolves lingering enigmas but also pushes him towards a transformative reconciliation of his inner conflicts with the external realities of a rapidly changing world, propelling Holmes toward existential revelations that redefine his understanding of justice, legacy, and the eternal power of truth. As the great detective has so often said, “The game is afoot!”

Diana n'Athena is an Amazon working for the Terran empire on the medieval planet of Aggar. Her mission is to rescue a downed pilot/spy from Aggar's wilds. But when the Council demands she be bonded to a Shadow in order to be allowed to make the journey, things get interesting.

Shadows are exceptional guides and fighters, but Elana is something more—she has the gift of the Blue Sight. As the two women race against time to prevent an all-out intergalactic war, they become erotically entangled, complicating both their lives and putting their mission in danger.

Before her death in July 1997, beloved lesbian-feminist author Chris Anne Wolfe published two of her four classic Amazon adventure novels – “Shadows of Aggar” and “Fires of Aggar.” These two volumes are only the first half of the Aggar cycle. Chris Anne also published two stand-alone novels, the time-bending romance, “Annabel and I,” and the retelling of Beauty and the Beast, “Roses and Thorns.”

The manuscripts of Chris Anne's remaining novels, short stories, poetry and songs, were willed to publisher and friend, Jennifer DiMarco. These hand-written volumes include both remaining Aggar books ("Sands of Aggar" and "Oceans of Aggar") and more than a dozen retold fairy tales and original fantasy and contemporary novels.

In this companion to “The Nightingale’s Stone,” Ada Ludenow explores the power of relationships to make and unmake us by using language itself as a fundamental binding force to use or misuse for gain or at our own peril. What emerges is one woman’s portrait of the world as an ambivalent, often hostile place, made livable by our ability to perceive the small events of beauty that overcome us in unexpected ways.

With color illustrations of each poem, “Small Events” offers timeless meditations on how we make meaning of love, hatred, memory, and being human. Readers of “The Nightingale’s Stone” will find a further expansion of that work’s themes and new readers will find a philosophically poetic voice inviting them to enter the plural reality of the Hagengard.

Stolas was in an impossible situation and didn't know how to find his way out of it. Airiella had gifted him with a vision that he didn't dare hope to believe in, yet he wanted. Stolas was living a prophecy he hadn't known about while juggling a new bond, his bond with Airiella, and a bond that existed before the others.

Together, they would all have to face the darkest places in their nightmares.

The Wager at Reichenbach Falls

The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes (Book 1)

Thomas Mengert

ISBN 978-1590929209 paperback

Also available in ebook.

SRP $16.99 • 284 pages • 6.0 x 9.0

Historical Fiction, Mysteries

Available to vendors through Ingram or directly from the publisher.

The theological odyssey of the Great Detective. The world of Holmes is a world of contradictions. Mysteries no author has solved... until now.

What happened on that fateful day at Reichenbach Falls when Detective Sherlock Holmes met his archnemesis, Professor James Moriarty? Why did Holmes go into hiding, abandoning his stalwart companion, Doctor John Watson, who assumed him dead? And what of Moriarty? Was he so easily consigned to a grave, the man who Holmes once called the Napoleon of Crime?

Lifelong Sherlockian scholar Thomas Mengert has drawn aside the curtain of history, unraveling and reweaving to reveal a deeper Sherlock Holmes than even the original works by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. A decade in the making, The Confessions of Sherlock Holmes is a multi-volume pilgrimage that frames “the problem of evil” as a philosophical investigation in search of a theological answer.

The journey begins in “The Wager at Reichenbach Falls” as Holmes and Watson meet on Dartmoor. Embarking on a round-the-world odyssey, they also reunite on a simultaneous adventure to save the British Empire from the machinations of the evil Baron Maupertuis, and Watson learns of a strange journal that finally reveals where Holmes was during “The Great Hiatus”—the four years when Watson and all of England thought that Sherlock Holmes was dead.

As the great detective has so often said, “The game is afoot!”

Every possibility lies ahead.

At an early age, Darius knew what he wanted and would move heaven and earth to get it. He viewed his life critically as a brilliant, young, black boy and yearned to make a difference. His potential was limitless.

After fighting a war that made him fear for his soul, Darius understands and fears so much more than ever before. He barely knows what Post Traumatic Stress Disorder is even as he's stuck in its cycle, floundering, as life tries to knock him off his feet over and over again.

But circumstances can change (for good and for bad) and friendships can form that push us in the direction we should be heading. Will Darius allow fear to hold him back or can he trust those he loves to catch him if he loses his balance?
